

Dear FCC,

Please create a mandatory nationwide Do Not Call list that all telemarketers must abide by. My family receives, on average, 3-5 telemarketing calls per day; these calls are entirely a nuisance and an invasion of my privacy. I bought and pay for telephone service FOR MY PERSONAL USE, not for a solicitor to hijack their way into my home. I'm a law student and these callers routinely interrupt my studying 3-5 times per day on weekends (the only study time I have). I need to keep my phone on in case my wife and daughters need to contact me. I have started asking all callers to take my name off their do not call list, some have hung up on me before I could finish this request. We went away for a weeks vacation and upon return there were 12 messages on my machine. Three messages were personal, and NINE were telemarketer automatic dialing hangups (my answering machine gets at least 1-2 of these per day.)

Again, please create a mandatory nationwide Do Not Call list.

Sincerely,
Doyle Siever
(Damascus, MD)